

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Today's Weather:

Weather—Partly cloudy.

DOMESTIC.

Admiral Schley held a reception, which was largely attended, in the city hall at Savannah, Ga., where he and his wife are at present visiting.

The joint committee of the house and senate have set February 22 as the date for the memorial meeting in honor of late President McKinley.

Mr. Bryan addressed the students of Harvard university.

J. M. McKnight, president of the defunct Norman National bank, has been convicted in the federal court in Louisville of embezzlement.

WASHINGTON.

Congress will devote most of the coming week to hearings before the various committees.

The first party fight in the senate will develop on the Philippines tariff bill and Cushman will take a prominent part therein.

The members of the Maryland delegation will press for the taking up of some of the resolutions concerning the Schley case, but Speaker Henderson is opposed to action.

Mr. Ball will introduce the new Texas Federal court bill after a conference with his colleagues.

A hearing will be had before the rivers and harbors committee during the present week on improvements of waterways generally.

E. Lampre, the French representative in this country of the Panama Canal company, was before the senate committee.

POLITICAL.

Richard Croker has retired from the leadership of Tammany and Lewis Nixon, at Croker's suggestion, was elected as his successor.

Hon. W. J. Bryan was the guest of the mayor of Boston.

The majority contest of Topoka has been decided by the supreme court in favor of Albert Parker, the democrat.

FOREIGN.

The Kaiser will not attend King Edward's coronation.

The yacht Hohenzollern is coming to America to be present at the wedding of Emperor William's new yacht.

Secretary Chamberlain, in a speech, has repudiated a cable message to Von Bulow's criticisms of a former speech he had made.

Deals have been made whereby European canals may be operated by American capital.

Transactions have been consummated whereby it may soon be possible to ship direct from an inland port in the United States to an inland port in Europe.

The recent call of the British war fleet for volunteers to go to South Africa has met with no response. Conciliation may become necessary.

An international sporting tournament has been arranged for the coronation ceremonies in England.

TEXAS.

E. E. Rogers was killed by a switch engine at Denison.

Forty-nine corporations with an aggregate capital stock of $5,700,000 filed charters at Austin during the first ten days of January.

Burglars made a good haul at Wallis.

A new gusher has been brought in at Beaumont.

The Austin law and order league has made a report to the citizens of that town telling them what is necessary to secure reform.

The Girls' Industrial school commission visited Taylor and looked over the site offered.

It is stated that politics will be taboed at the coming meeting of the State Federation of Labor at Waco.

The city of Dallas was making an investigation of electric light companies with a view to securing suit, but a federal court receiver has been appointed.

Actions in involuntary bankruptcy have been instituted in the federal court against three firms recently assigned.

COMMERCIAL.

Cotton prices lowered slightly on disappointing Liverpool and heavy liquidation.

Sheep receipts have been light for several days and butchers are becoming anxious about supplies.

In the stock market the bank statement did not disappoint expectations, and there was a settling toward dulness.

Cattle market was reported as steady and quiet, with no receipts at Texas at St. Louis, Chicago or Kansas City.

RAILROADS.

Judge Reagan is not inclined to view with favor some of the proposed amendments to the interstate commerce act.

It is stated positively that Dallas must join the war on the scorpions before cheap rates to the Confederate reunion will be made.

Vice President Markham and party returned from a trip of inspection of the Central lines yesterday.

Betting Master Mechaulo Grant of the

Every Exertion a Task

Every Care a Burden

There is failure of the strength to do and the power to endure; there is weakness "all over" that is persistent and constant.

The vital functions are impaired, food does not nourish, and the whole system is run down.

A medicine that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion, invigorates and tones is needed.

What Hood's Sarsaparilla did for Mrs. L. B. Garland, Sandy, Tenn., it has done for others. She took it when she was all run down—with out appetite, losing flesh, and unable to do her work. It restored her appetite, increased her weight, and made her well and strong. This is her own unsolicited statement.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. The earlier treatment is begun the better the result.

Houston East and West Texas was presented with a handsome gold watch by the employees of the shops.

HOUSTON.

President Charlton of the school board estimates that the schools will require $22,300 this year in addition to the regular appropriation.

Hon. James K. P. Gillaspie was appointed by the governor to succeed Judge A. C. Allen as judge of the criminal district court for Harris and Galveston counties.

Judge W. H. Wilson announces for mayor and Dr. W. M. Ramsey for health officer. The British club permanently organized by electing officers.

The poultry show will keep its doors open today.

Greenville Kemp arrested for the murder of Joe Selph.

Norman Deal dies from the effect of being hit on the head with a crowbar by Elliot Greese, both colored.

The man run over and killed by a Katy train early yesterday morning identified as J. F. Ferguson of Fort Worth.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Politics to Be Barred.

Austin, Texas, January 11.—The Austin delegation to the Confederation of Labor convention, which meets tomorrow in Waco, left this afternoon for the Greyhound. They will not then declare formal politics to enter into the proceedings of the meeting.

Balance in the Treasury.

Austin, Texas, January 11.—The cash balance in the state treasury at the close of business today to the credit of the general revenue fund was $3,063,083, against $1,138,324 for the same time last year.

To Buy a Quarantine Vessel.

Austin, Texas, January 11.—State Health Officer Taber left tonight for Philadelphia to see about the purchase of a new steam vessel for the quarantine service at Galveston. The last legislature made an appropriation of $45,000 for this purpose, and it will be the intention of the health officer to either have a new vessel constructed or purchase one outright. Dr. Taber will be absent from his office for about ten days.

Governor Goes to El Paso.

Austin, Texas, January 11.—The governor will leave tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock for El Paso, to be present at the live stock convention, which opens Tuesday. He will remain for two days in the Western metropolis before he starts on his return journey.

This will be the governor's first visit to El Paso since 1892.

Department Notes.

Austin, Texas, January 11.—The State purchasing agent's department today received three carloads of supplies for the various elementary institutions located here. One of the cars contained a lot of books for the Confederate home.

The comptroller's department today received an order of $10,000 for the purchase of bonds, and the entire issue was purchased by the school board for the permanent school fund.

The order of the Star and Crescent, a fraternal insurance company of San Antonio, today renewed its permit to do business in Texas.

The Weston Smith Lumber company of Delta county amended its charter today by increasing its capital stock from $100,000 to $250,000.

News Notes.

Austin, Texas, January 11.—The tax collectors of the State today presented Comptroller Love with a handsome emblem, a watch, cross to wear on his watch chain as a charm. It is a beautiful chain and was presented by a committee from the local command composed of Capt. Master Carleton, Charles R. Morse, J. L. Jamison, Joff Johnson and Ed Kaufman.

At the regular meeting of Protection Lodge No. 32, Knights and Ladies of the Wood, on Thursday evening the following officers were duly installed for the ensuing term: Mrs. Anna M. Taylor, president; Mr. J. H. Korman, vice president; Mr. P. Thompson, chairman; Mrs. S. J. O'Brien, treasurer; Mr. H. C. Mahoney, secretary and financial secretary; Mrs. M. J. McCracken of Austin Lodge No. 32, Knights and Ladies of the Wood, installed as installing officer.

THE RACES.

Three Favorites Crossed the Line First at New Orleans.

New Orleans, January 11.—Carl Kohler, Adair and Linga were the winning favorites. Nellie Waddell, who won the stakes—the Gentilly handicap at six and a half furlongs, worth $1240 to the winner—was a comparative outsider in the betting. The filly took the lead in the first few strides and continued up with good speed, forced to a drive at the end and only beat Taylor, the favorite, half a length. She will also be given a rest and will be shipped to Churchill Downs tonight. Death, in his race, reduced the track record for a mile and a half to 1:24. Weather clear; track fast.

Six furlongs—Semantics, Weldman, Imp, Adair, Linga, Time 1:13. Selling, mile and a half—Admetus, Jack-anapes, Beana, Time 2:26. Gentilly handicap, six and a half furlongs—Nellie Waddell, Taylor, Pake, Time 1:21.

Handicap, mile and a half—Death, Silver Colt, 1:15. Mallette, Time 1:17. Selling, mile and seven-eighths—Lingo, Ernest Pariana, Lecija, Time 1:46.1/2.

Oakland Results.

Sau Francisco, January 11.—Five furlongs—King Herald, Moshias, The Manito, Time 1:02. Three furlongs—Thaddeus, Hudson, Venetia, Time 1:03. Selling, mile—Shurein, Rushfields, Katharine Emma, Time 1:41.1/2. Seven furlongs—Follansbee handicap, high weight—San Nicholas, Rickard, The Giver, Time 1:50. Mile and a half—handicap—Position, Bollick, Venetia, Time 1:49.1/2. Futurity course, selling—San of Tarsus, Marshall Nell, Herculean, Time 1:13.1/2.

BOARD OF ARBITRATION.

Minor Baseball Leagues Held a Conference at New York.

New York, January 11.—The National board of arbitration held a meeting in this city last night. This is the governing body of the minor baseball league of America. Those present were: E. L. Powers, president National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues; St. M. Sexton, president of the three I's league; J. H. Farrell of the New York State league; J. L. O'Rourke of the Connecticut league and T. H. Murdock of the New England league. Authority was given for the fixing of the salary limits of the leagues.

At a meeting of the Western league in Kansas City next week, Powers, Farrell and Sexton will be in attendance, according to a decision arrived at last night, and will then deal with the questions affecting the fight between the Western league and the American association.

Nasturtium Will Be Favorite.

New York, January 11.—Nasturtium, it is conceded by experts in London, will be the favorite for the Derby, according to the World. He has not been in any way injured by the trouble and has been exercised daily since his arrival at Huggins' stable, Newmarket.

Charles Self, the elder brother of the jockey, is now installed at Moulthome to take Wishard's place as trainer. Croker having apparently given up his other training duties at Newmarket.

A CHANGE OF FEELING.

Germany Evidently Feels More Kindly Toward the United States.

INTEREST TAKEN IN THE ST. LOUIS FAIR.

Beer Consumption Increasing—Prince of Wales' Visit—Germans Having Hard Time in Prussian Poland.

Berlin, January 11.—Whether by reason of President Roosevelt's especially cordial personal communication to Emperor William, recently transmitted unofficially, or because the United States has shown more than passive good will toward Germany in the Venezuela entanglement, the foreign office here shows a disposition to forward any object in which the United States is interested. Correctly this is the moment for the St. Louis exposition management to tell the German government what it desires for the fair. Since last summer, when the foreign office gave little encouragement to the representations of the United States embassy on the subject, a change in the government's attitude has taken place. Were the St. Louis delegates here at present they would be welcomed and given an opportunity to present definite requests.

German manufacturers have taken considerable interest in the exposition, judging from the numerous letters to the United States consular general.

The arrival here of Walter Williams, the well known newspaper editor of Kansas City, who is at present making a tour of Europe, has stimulated newspaper interest and the numerous letters to the consular general with plans and notices and descriptions of the fair.

Dr. J. J. Jones of the Berlin university, who is doing studies of the labor market and industrial situation, finds that coincident with the depression is a greater concentration of capital and a more intensive use of the same and weaker currencies. The improved reports apply mainly to the great establishments.

The consumption of beer in 1901 averaged fifty-seven millions per head throughout the empire. The average consumption in 1900, according to the official records was thirty-eight millions per head, an increase in two decades of nearly 50 per cent.

The price of wheat, which has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

The price of wheat has been the subject of the British government to show good will toward Germany, has been simply as a token of King Edward's personal regard for Emperor William. The price of wheat has therefore declined all invitations to entertainments proposed in a lounge, including a reception by the German regiment in which King Edward is to be received.

RISING BREAST

No woman who uses "Mother's Friend" need fear the suffering and danger incident to birth; for it robs the ordeal of its horror and insures safety to life of mother and child, and leaves her in a condition more favorable to speedy recovery. The child is also healthy, strong and good natured. Our book "Motherhood" is worth its weight in gold to every woman, and will be sent free in plain envelope by addressing application to Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

And many other painful and serious ailments from which most mothers suffer, can be avoided by the use of "Mother's Friend." This great remedy is a God-send to women, carrying them through their most critical ordeal with safety and no pain.

"Mother's Friend" is worth its weight in gold to every woman, and will be sent free in plain envelope by addressing application to Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

to the animosity of foreign nations, he said that he was aware that in some quarters it was attributed to the "indiscreet oratory of the colonial secretary."

"What I have said," continued the secretary, "I defend nothing. As I read history, no British minister has ever served his country faithfully and at the same time been popular abroad. I do not want to give lessons to a foreign minister and I will not accept any at his hands. I am responsible only to my sovereign and my countrymen."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

CHAMBERLAIN'S RETORT.

Has Nothing to Withdraw and Will Not Qualify Anything.

WILL NEITHER GIVE NOR TAKE LESSONS

Says that the Empire Will Be Supported by the Sons of Britain in Every Quarter of the Globe.

London, January 11.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, in speaking at Birmingham tonight took occasion to notice the criticism showered upon him in the Reichstag during the past week, especially Count Von Bulow's castigation, in referring to the animosity of foreign nations, he said that he was aware that in some quarters it was attributed to the "indiscreet oratory of the colonial secretary."

"What I have said," continued the secretary, "I defend nothing. As I read history, no British minister has ever served his country faithfully and at the same time been popular abroad. I do not want to give lessons to a foreign minister and I will not accept any at his hands. I am responsible only to my sovereign and my countrymen."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

to the animosity of foreign nations, he said that he was aware that in some quarters it was attributed to the "indiscreet oratory of the colonial secretary."

"What I have said," continued the secretary, "I defend nothing. As I read history, no British minister has ever served his country faithfully and at the same time been popular abroad. I do not want to give lessons to a foreign minister and I will not accept any at his hands. I am responsible only to my sovereign and my countrymen."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."

"I do not depreciate the importance of the good will of foreign nations, but there is something more important. It is the affection and confidence of our kinsfolk across the sea. From our great losses in the war that has been forced upon us have brought in their train one blessing of infinite and lasting confidence. That war has enabled the British empire to find itself and has shown to all whom it may concern that if ever again we have, as in the past, to fight for our very existence against the world in arms, we will be supported by the sons of Britain in every quarter of the globe."